NEW CITY IN THE SOUTH-HER

The S uth has always dreamed of having a great city of her own—a Southern metropolis; if not a New York, at least a Boston, which has pride in other things besides bulk—a real provincial capital, with a provincial aristocracy. She fancied she had it when the national moved from Philipharchic.

things besides bulk—a real provincial capital, with a provincial aristocracy. She fancied she had it when the national capital was moved from Philadephia to Washington. Washington was the geographical heart of the country, and it was thought it might become the Paris or the Berlin of the South, if not the Lodon of the continent. But there were two obstacles, both of which proved insumountable. In the first place there was slavery, and in the second Washington was 200 miles from the sea. It lay far inland, up a circuitous river—a very noble river, but not a harbor inviting to the shipping of all nations.

But now a century has gone by in an exceedingly short space of time—in fact, since 1860. Slavery is passed, and the most effective motive that ever moved human effort has been planted in the negro mind, 4,000,000 strong. There is to be a cotton crop of 5,000,000 bales—2,.000,000,000 pounds of cotton a year, and increasing on that. There is to be also a new scaport, or a scaport rediscovered after being forgotton for a century, because, although it was known to the government, nothing led to it from inland, and, consequently, it lay unused and almost unknown to ships. It seems now, therefore, as if the South might realize its oid dream of commercial importance and have a city of its own, not equal to New York, but shortly challenging Eoston. Citizens of the great metropolis can afford to help her build a competing emporium, since they have quite out grown any feelings of jealousy, and many even rejoiced at such wholesome competition as she can set up.

There is one reason why the splendid harbor of Port Royal has attracted so little attention heretofore. It is situated harbor of Charleston and Savannaa, both in the short hard substants of the long-established ports of Charleston and Savannaa, both in the castal was a substant of the province convention.

half way between the long-established ports of Charleston and Savannah, both of which have had railway connection aland, with old steamer lines to New iniam, with our steamer throat the harbor has been perfectly bouyed by the Coast Sarvey Board. Now, however, under the late Pof. A. D. Bache, it has been thoroughly furnished in this respect; and it is officially announced that it can sentered by "any vessel yet built, without a pilot," the only direction secessary being to sail in and out by the lored sides of the buoys which every colored sides of the budys which every sallor understands.

The late completion of the railroad from Port Royal to Augusta gives a through trunk line of communication to Nashville, St. Louis, Memphis, and all the principal distributing points of the South, at the same time connecting sith the ports of Savannah and Charleston. And there is this remarkable fact

The Most Extensive abe observed, that the southwestern rend of the Atlantic coast, below the apes of Delaware, gives a much nearer to of transportation from St. Louis, a great centre of the Mississippi valley.

Port Royal, than to the northern apping ports of New York and Boston. It says to the reat constitution and measured transfer and measured transfer. t consolidating and monopouzing oad lines which govern our tables, Reduce your freights or you lose trade.'
Here, certainly, are the principal conitions, now first realized by the South for the building up of a new city on their own delightful coast It needs only enterprise and perseverance to suc-ceed, and all should hall the project as a very important part of the grand work of Southern reconstruction, in which the South can hardly fail to receive the

THE MOTHER-IN-LAW QUESTION .- IS A on-in-law bound to support his mother-n-law? This is a conundrum which bethers a good many people. It comes up in court occasionally; but the more decisions there are on the point, the deeper becomes the muddle. For in-stance: In the New York Court of Comstance: In the New York Court of Com-mon Pleas a suit came up involving cer-tain questions of domestics economy, in which Judge Daly rendered a decision, one part thereof being that a son-in-law is, in law and duty, bound to furnish his mother-in-law shelter and sustenance. Per contra, it was only the other day that Judge Larrimore, of the same city, ruled, in a similar case, that a man who took a wife did not marry the whole family. When Judges thus disagree, who shall decide?

"Is there any money in it?" This is the great touchstone by which all propositions are tested nowa-days. In everyday business life, in politics, and we tear, in many cases, in religion, it is the criterion which decides the question. If a friend broaches a new project, the first question he is met with is, "Is there any money in it?" If a person approaches another on the subject of accepting an office in the gift of the people, the first question that arises is, "Is there any money in it?" And so on throughout the various transactions of life. So intricately is this question of deliars and cents interwoven in all the affairs of, that, if the motive for any uncommon act by its the motive for any uncommon act by the state of the state of the motive for any uncommon act by the state of the doings and cents interwoven in all the affairs of, that, if the motive for any un-common act brought to public notice cannot be traced to this root, it is very apt to stamp the actor as a lunatic.
